

[The following text is a dense, continuous block of text, likely a scan of a document page. It appears to be a mix of English and possibly some non-English characters, but the overall structure is that of a single paragraph or a series of lines of text. Due to the low resolution and potential noise in the scan, the specific words and punctuation are difficult to discern accurately. The text seems to flow from top to bottom, filling most of the page area.]

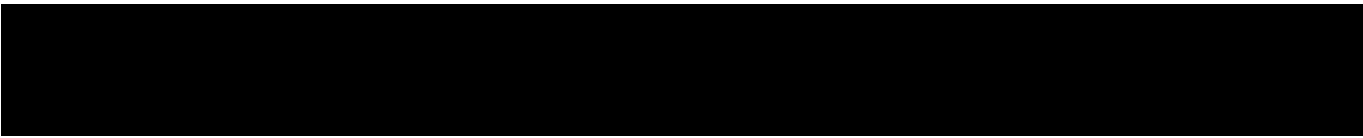

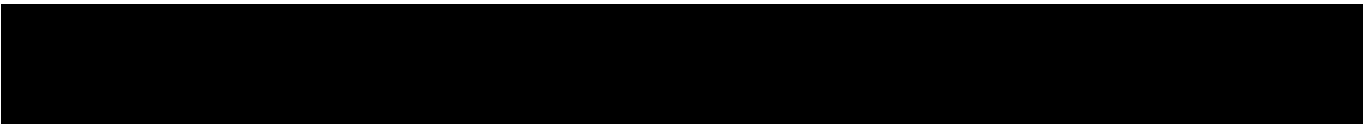

Made with Gamma

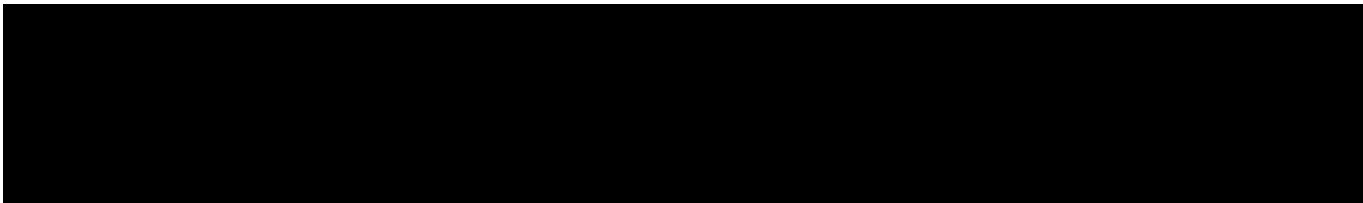

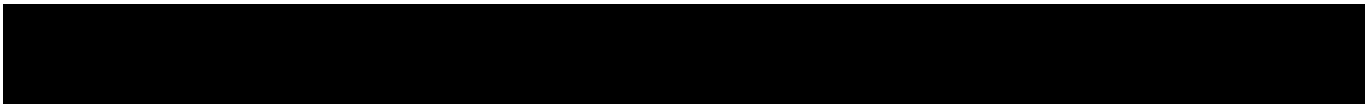

Made with Gamma

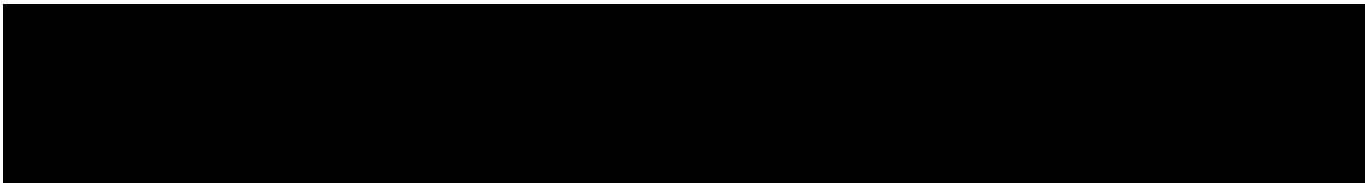

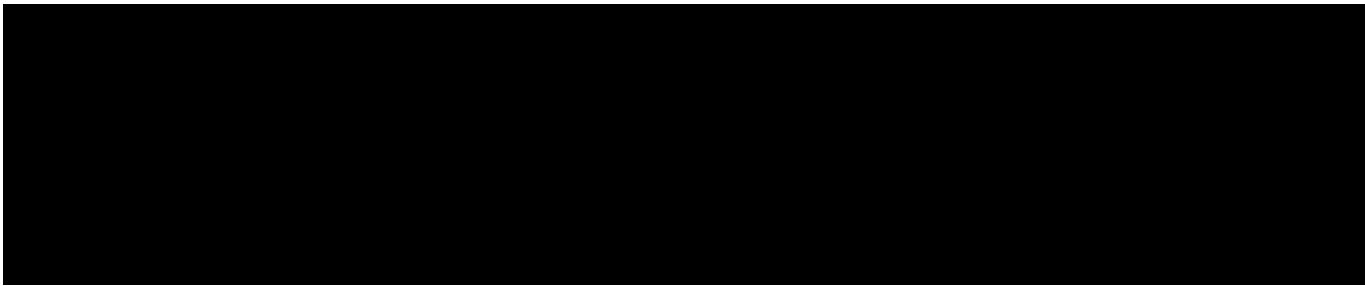

Made with Gamma

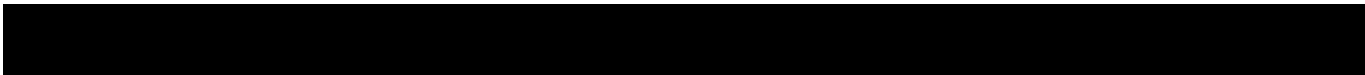

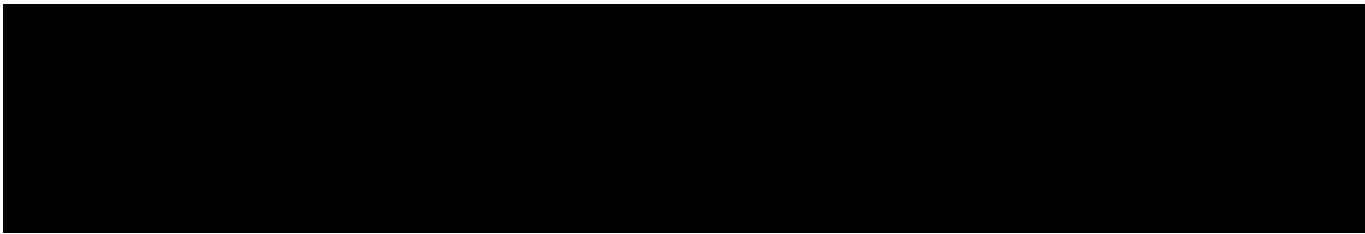

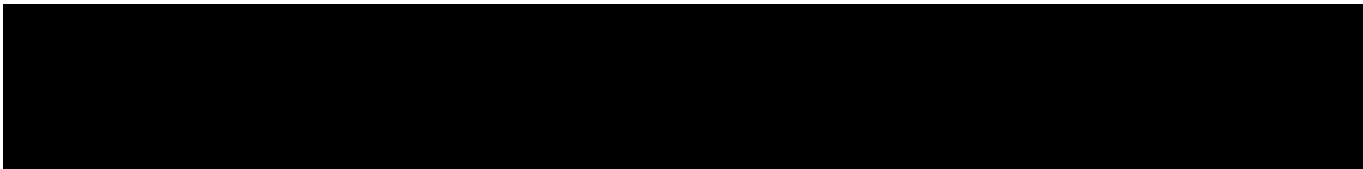

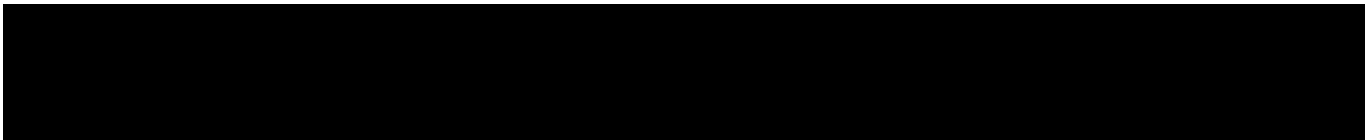

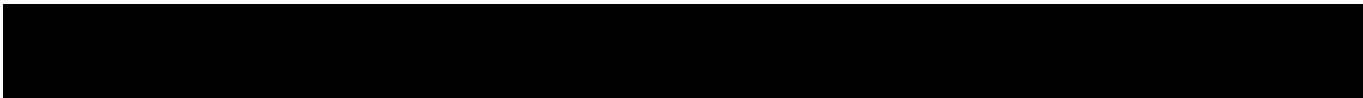

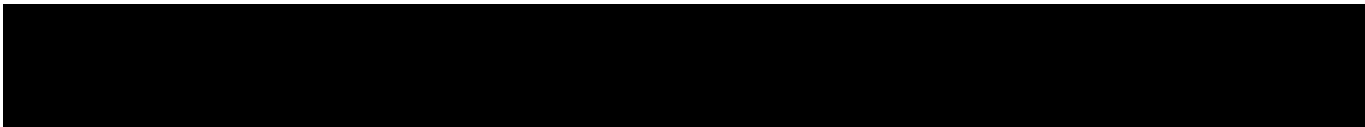

Made with Gamma

[REDACTED]

[The following text is a dense, continuous block of text, likely a scan of a document page. It appears to be a mix of English and possibly some non-English characters, but the overall structure suggests a single paragraph or a series of closely related sentences. The text is too blurry and low-contrast to transcribe accurately, but it seems to contain several lines of prose.]

[Illegible text block]

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million (from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1998) and the number of people in the public sector who are employed in the health sector has increased by 1.2 million (from 1.3 million in 1980 to 2.5 million in 1998) (Department of Health 1999).

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the quality of care provided by the public sector. This has led to a number of initiatives, including the introduction of the Health Care Act 1999, which sets out a framework for the regulation of health care providers. The Act also sets out a number of objectives for the health care system, including the need to improve the quality of care, to ensure that care is safe, effective, and efficient, and to ensure that care is accessible to all. The Act also sets out a number of measures to be taken to achieve these objectives, including the introduction of a new regulatory body, the Health Care Commission, and the introduction of a new system of accreditation for health care providers.

The Health Care Commission is a new regulatory body that was established in 1999. It is responsible for regulating the quality of care provided by health care providers. The Commission is made up of a number of members, including representatives of the public, of health care providers, and of the government. The Commission is responsible for setting standards for the quality of care, for monitoring and assessing the quality of care, and for taking action to improve the quality of care where it is found to be inadequate. The Commission is also responsible for publishing information about the quality of care provided by health care providers.

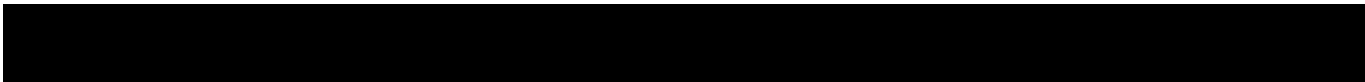

The Health Care Commission is also responsible for setting standards for the quality of care. The Commission has set a number of standards for the quality of care, including standards for the safety of care, for the effectiveness of care, for the efficiency of care, and for the accessibility of care. The Commission is responsible for monitoring and assessing the quality of care provided by health care providers against these standards. The Commission is also responsible for taking action to improve the quality of care where it is found to be inadequate.

The Commission is also responsible for publishing information about the quality of care provided by health care providers. The Commission publishes a number of reports and documents, including a report on the quality of care provided by health care providers, a report on the quality of care provided by health care providers, and a report on the quality of care provided by health care providers. The Commission also publishes a number of documents, including a report on the quality of care provided by health care providers, a report on the quality of care provided by health care providers, and a report on the quality of care provided by health care providers.

The Commission is also responsible for taking action to improve the quality of care where it is found to be inadequate. The Commission can take a number of actions to improve the quality of care, including issuing a warning to a health care provider, requiring a health care provider to take action to improve the quality of care, and removing a health care provider from the register of health care providers. The Commission is also responsible for publishing information about the quality of care provided by health care providers.

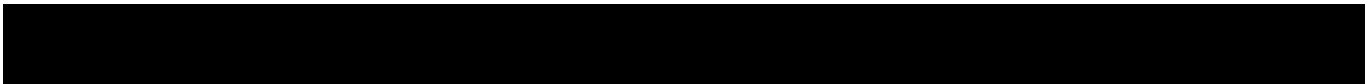

The Commission is also responsible for publishing information about the quality of care provided by health care providers. The Commission publishes a number of reports and documents, including a report on the quality of care provided by health care providers, a report on the quality of care provided by health care providers, and a report on the quality of care provided by health care providers. The Commission also publishes a number of documents, including a report on the quality of care provided by health care providers, a report on the quality of care provided by health care providers, and a report on the quality of care provided by health care providers.

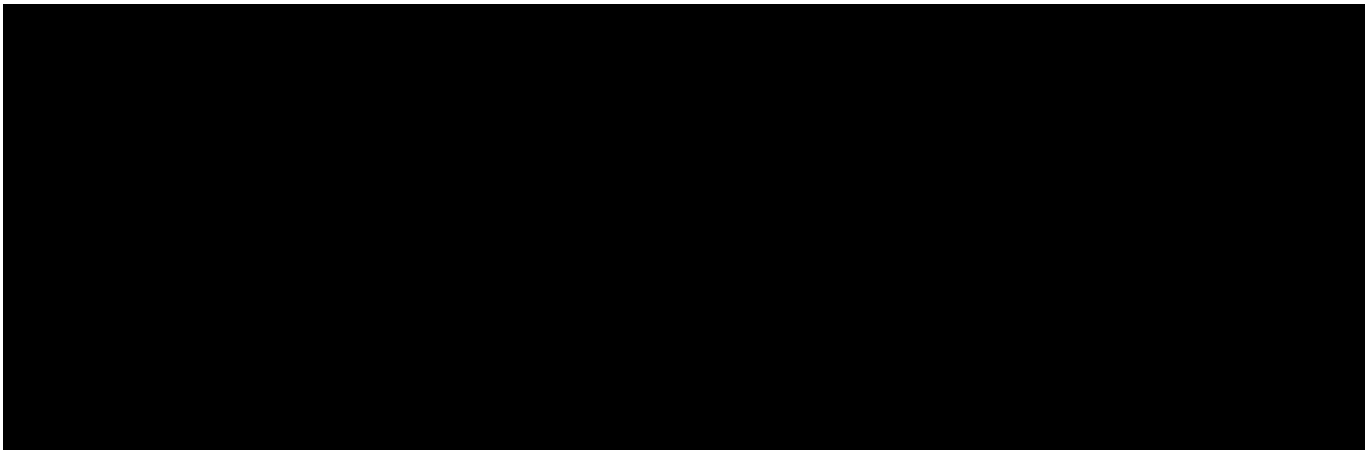

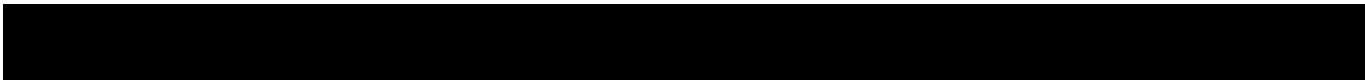

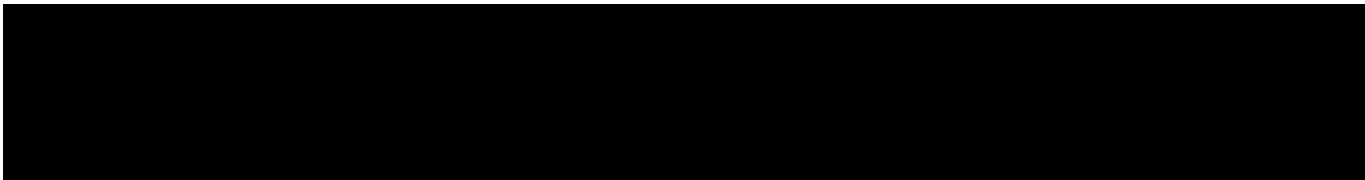

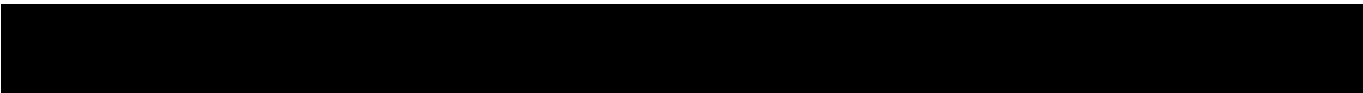

[The following text is a dense, continuous block of text, likely a scan of a document page. It contains numerous lines of text, many of which are illegible due to the quality of the scan. The text appears to be a mix of English and possibly some non-English characters, but the overall structure suggests a formal document or report. The text is too blurry to transcribe accurately.]

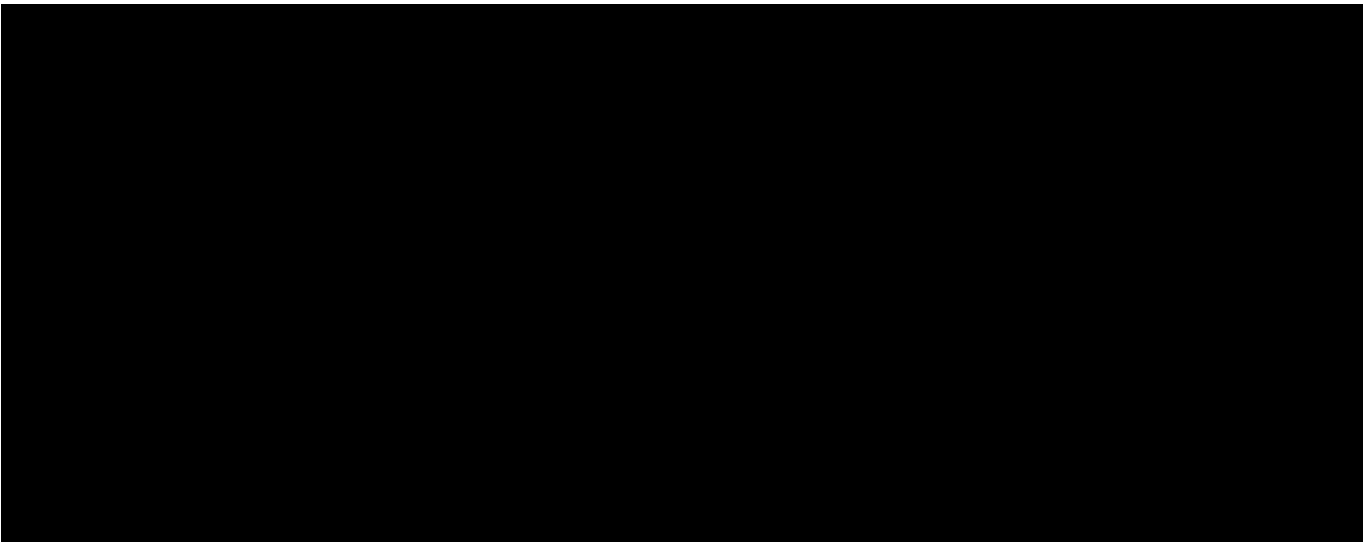

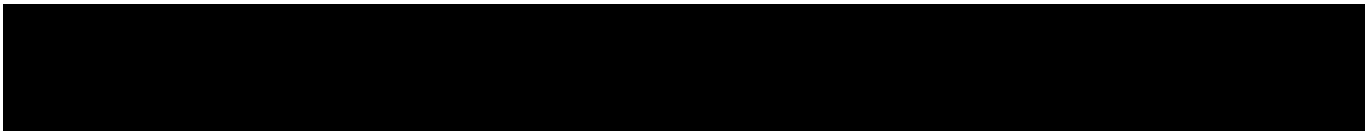

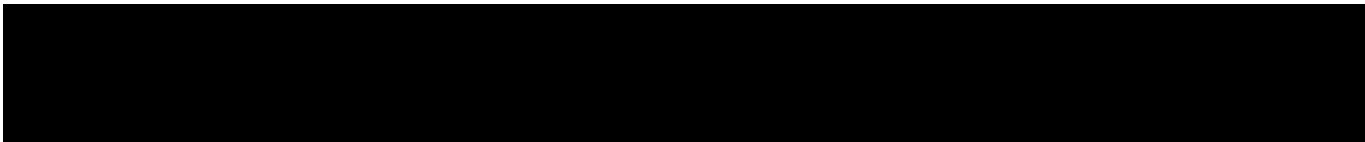

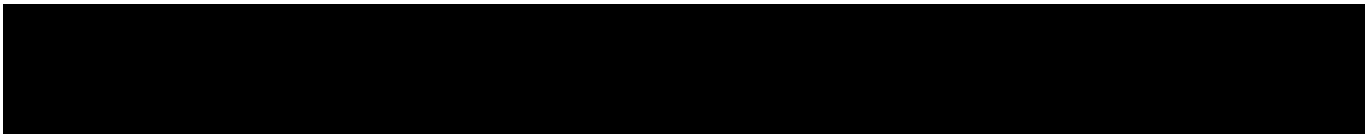

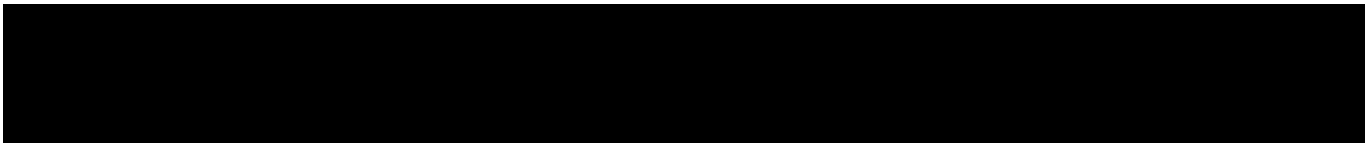

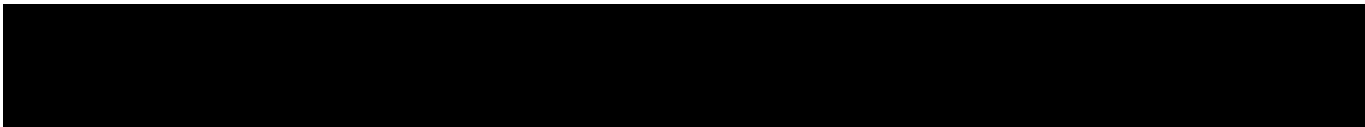

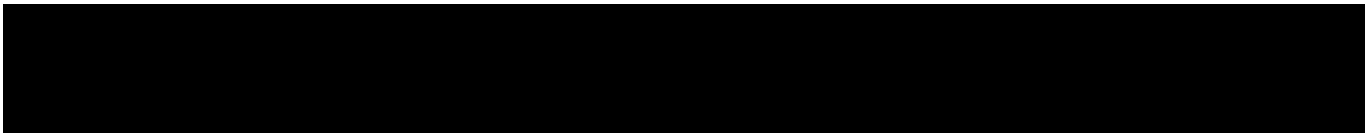

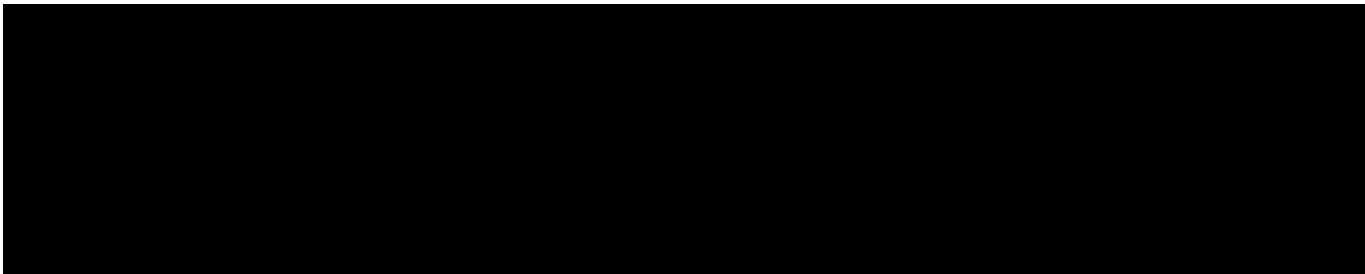

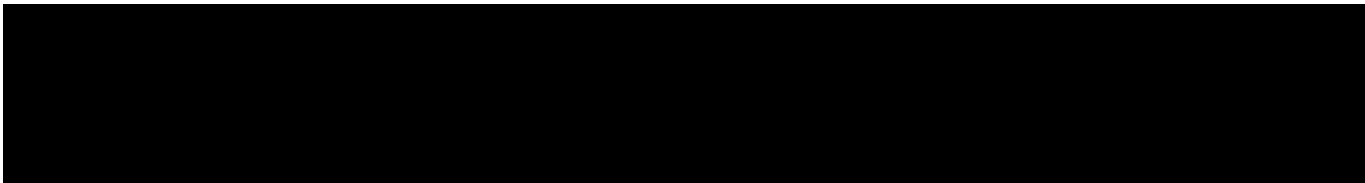

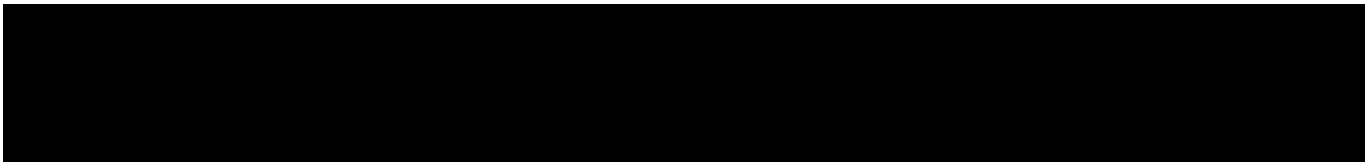

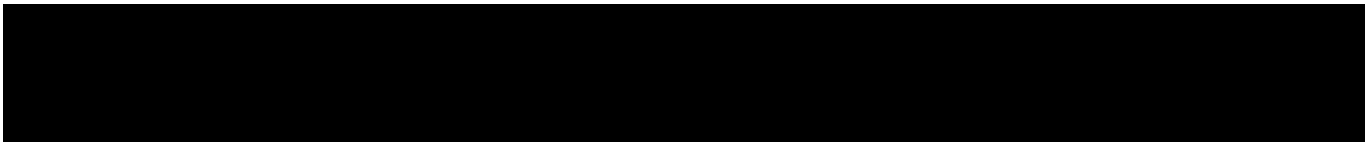

the 'information' and 'communication' fields. The 'information' field is defined as:

...the study of the nature, uses and functions of information, and the study of the processes by which information is created, communicated, disseminated and preserved. (p. 1)

The 'communication' field is defined as:

...the study of the nature, uses and functions of communication, and the study of the processes by which communication is created, communicated, disseminated and preserved. (p. 1)

These definitions are not intended to be exhaustive, but they do provide a starting point for the discussion.

The 'information' field is defined as:

...the study of the nature, uses and functions of information, and the study of the processes by which information is created, communicated, disseminated and preserved. (p. 1)

The 'communication' field is defined as:

...the study of the nature, uses and functions of communication, and the study of the processes by which communication is created, communicated, disseminated and preserved. (p. 1)

These definitions are not intended to be exhaustive, but they do provide a starting point for the discussion.

The 'information' field is defined as:

...the study of the nature, uses and functions of information, and the study of the processes by which information is created, communicated, disseminated and preserved. (p. 1)

The 'communication' field is defined as:

...the study of the nature, uses and functions of communication, and the study of the processes by which communication is created, communicated, disseminated and preserved. (p. 1)

These definitions are not intended to be exhaustive, but they do provide a starting point for the discussion.

The 'information' field is defined as:

...the study of the nature, uses and functions of information, and the study of the processes by which information is created, communicated, disseminated and preserved. (p. 1)

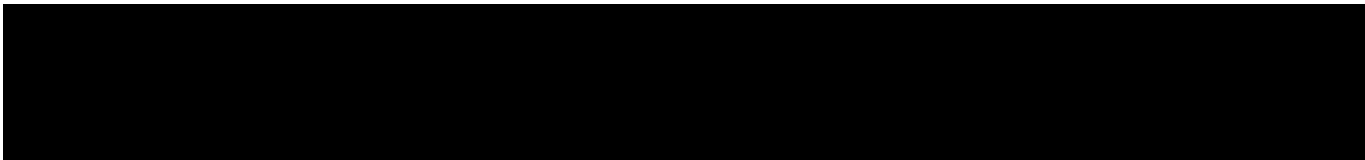

The 'communication' field is defined as:

...the study of the nature, uses and functions of communication, and the study of the processes by which communication is created, communicated, disseminated and preserved. (p. 1)

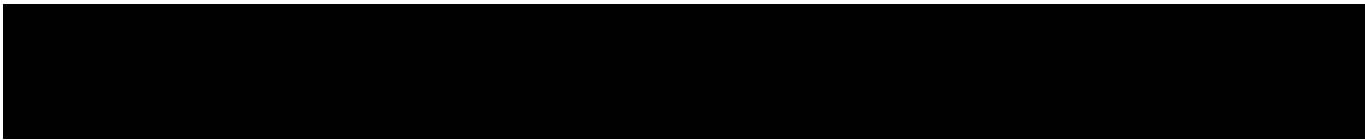

[The following text is a dense, continuous block of text, likely a scan of a document page. It contains numerous lines of text, many of which are illegible due to the quality of the scan. The text appears to be a mix of English and possibly some non-English characters, but the overall structure suggests a formal document or report. The text is too blurry to transcribe accurately.]

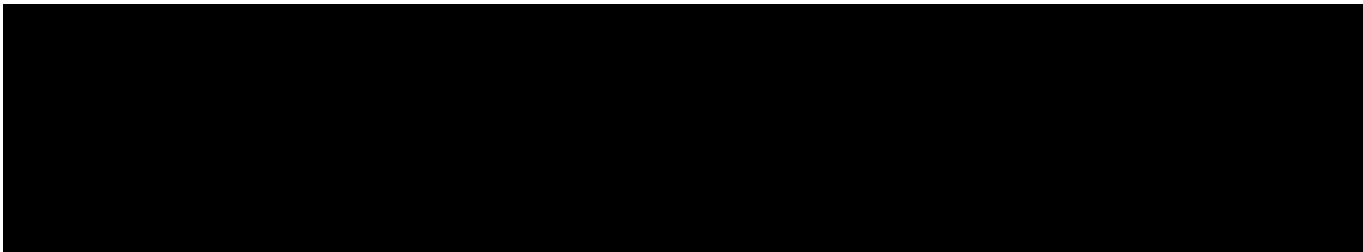

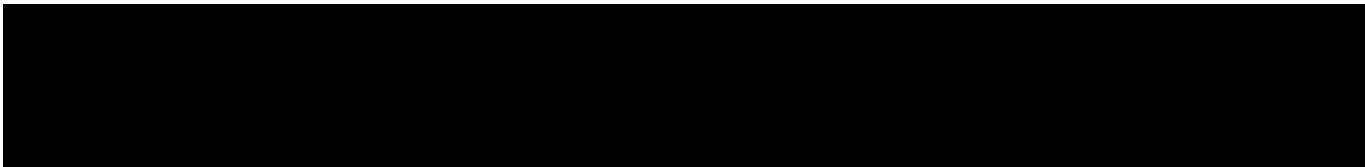

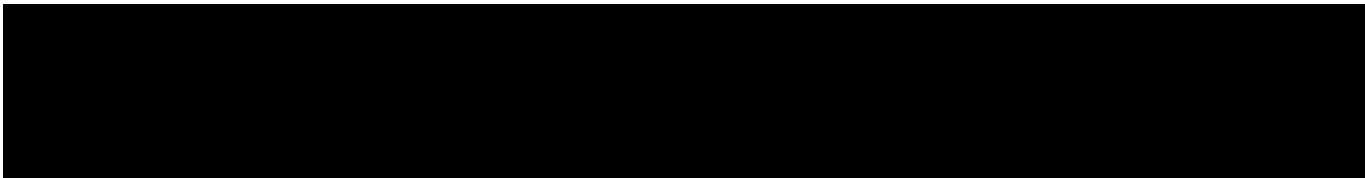

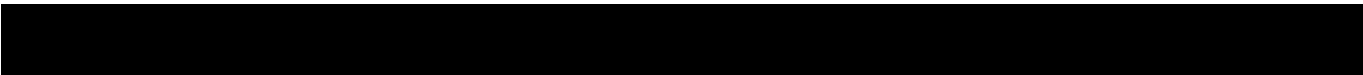

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995. The public sector has become a major employer in the UK, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy.

The public sector has also become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy.

The public sector has also become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy.

The public sector has also become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy.

The public sector has also become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy.

The public sector has also become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy.

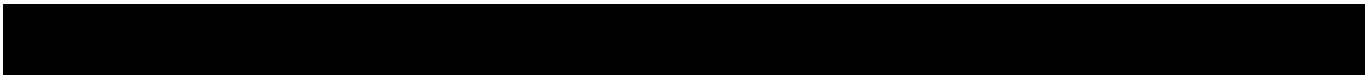

The public sector has also become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy.

The public sector has also become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy.

The public sector has also become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has become a major provider of social services, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy.

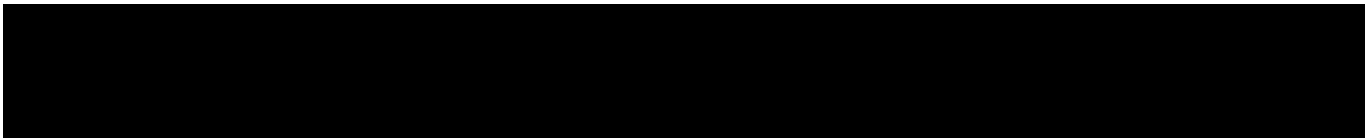

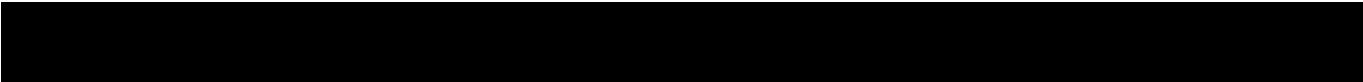

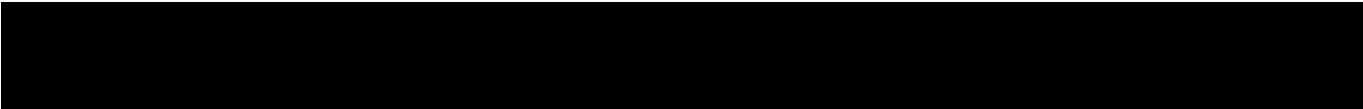

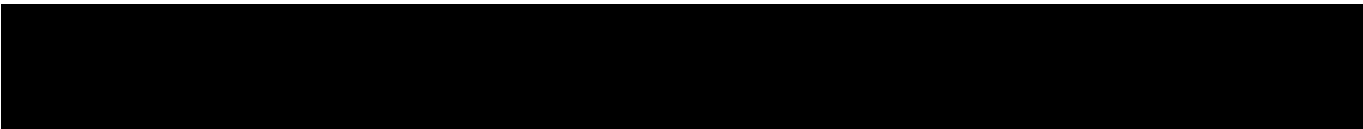

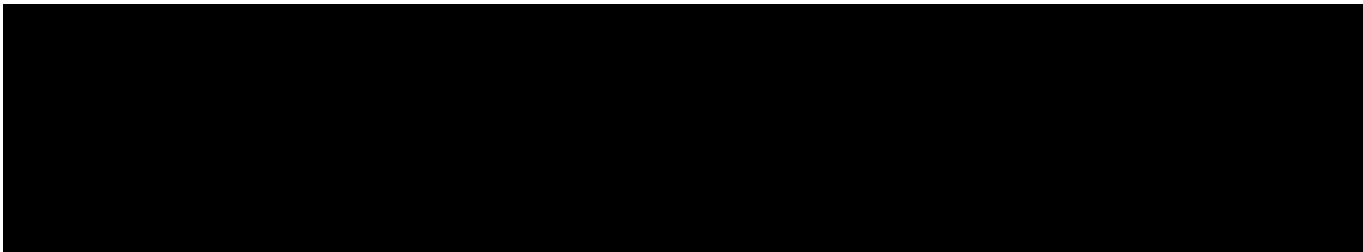

[The following text is a dense, continuous block of text, likely a scan of a document page. It contains numerous lines of text, many of which are illegible due to the quality of the scan. The text appears to be a mix of English and possibly some non-English characters, but the overall structure suggests a formal document or report. The text is too blurry to transcribe accurately.]

[The following text is a dense, continuous block of illegible characters and symbols, likely representing a corrupted scan of a document page. It contains no discernible words or structure.]

[REDACTED]

[The following text is a dense, continuous block of text, likely a scan of a document page. It appears to be a mix of English and possibly some non-English characters, but the overall structure suggests a single paragraph or a series of lines of text. Due to the low resolution and potential noise in the scan, the specific words and punctuation are difficult to discern accurately. The text is oriented vertically on the page.]

